Have you ever wanted to start a family tradition, but were too bogged down with your holiday "to do" list to add one more thing? Well, now you can add a little sparkle and enthusiasm in your Christmas season with a one-of-a-kind treat! "Where's My Elf Hat?" is a fun way to bring a little tradition in your home, without adding more stress! Kids love sending Santa letters, but sometimes find their little hearts broken when Santa doesn't write back. You've heard Santa's elves helping with presents and goodies, but did you know that they also help Santa let kids know he cares! Start a new family tradition this year, with these adorable little hats! Your kids will wake up with excitement each day as they run through the house looking to see if Santa's "special" helper has left them a message!

Rory: The Adventure of a Lion Cub was simply breath-taking. The pictures were wonderfully done and every photo had us feeling as though we had entered an African Safari—along with Roberts.

While this book was written with the intent of children ages four to seven, smaller children will be so captivated by the photos that they won't be able to put the book down! In fact, children who can't read have plenty of pictures to make up their own stories.

I especially love the light-hearted approach of ending the story with a lesson the child can understand and remember.
